of Hugh J. Jewett in 1878 Recalled. Eugene A. Philbin was moved yesterday mike reply to remirks made about him y President Vreeland and printed yesterw moraing. He goes about at full spead disclaim, as he has done before, that he as any pedias against the Metropolitan ompany, and he insists, in substance, that is attack on the corporation was inspired w the real thing in the way of patriotism. le denies by inference that anybody's suggestion that the job would net him "fame and fortune" had anything to do with his eptance of Braker's retainer.

Perhaps the most interesting thing in Mr. Philbin's statement is that part of it which throws to the winds the report of Teichmann, the Baltimore expert accountnt, wass work cost James R. Keene's son-in-law at the rate of $3 an hour and expenses, or something more than $1,000, told. When Amory first bobbed up with his awful disclosures he said they vere verified by two expert accountants, and so pleasing were the reports of the recountants to all hands at that time that mebody thought a copy of one of the somebody thought a copy of the reports would look well in print. Thereupon a ccpy was permitted to escape into a newspaper office and it has never yet been discovered who let the thing get away. Later, the accountant whose report was published in part, declared, for the sake of his own reputation, that all his findings were tentative and could not be verified without an examination of the books of the company. Then, thereupon, and immediately, Amory insinuated that Teichmann had been bought up by the company. Since Teichmann, on Friday, declared on the witness stand that, had he had certain data at his disposal, he would not have found that the company had a deflect of something like $18,000,00, he has fallen into disfavor with Philbin, as well as Amory, and Philbin now declares that he based his report to Braker solely on the charges of Amory, whom he calls a "railroad expert," supported by "the advice of experienced railroad accountants employed by me." eports would look well in print. Theredentally, Mr. Philbin rather belittles poidentally, Mr. Philoin rather behindes District Attorney's investigation of jory's charges. It has been reported it the District Attorney's accountant if found nothing wrong with the com-ity. In reference to the District Attor-ies investigation, Mr. Philbin says:

seeing his friends and their attack on the company through. It was recalled yesterday that something of a parallel to the attack on the Metropolitan company is to be found in the attempt made by one Frank Platt of London January, 1878, to have Hugh J. Jewett, president and receiver of the Eric Railway company, convicted of perjury for having alsified the reports of the receiver, in that, according to the charges, the reports welled the assets of the company to an amount by several millions more than it hould have been.

mount by several millions more than it ould have been.

Mr. Jewett was haled to a police court of the case was there threshed out, the is Judge Fullerton appearing on one side at the late William A. Beach on the other. The case resolved itself into a simple uestion of bookkeeping. Platt got several upert accountants to swear that Mr. went had made false returns, while Stenen Little, one of the expert accountants or the Metropolitan Street Railway now, at then the auditor of the Erie, as well as other W. Downing, comptroller of the ennsylvania Railroad; John S. Lied, treasper of the Northern Central Railway Comany; James C. Hartt, treasurer of the World of Feb. 9, 1878, made this statement:

In this case, as is well known by all who have xamined it, there is not the least foundation for a charge of perjury. Yet it is made by an irresponsible character at the bidding of another. Mr. Jewett is placed in the isnominious position of a prisoner at the bar of justice. The fact is published everywhere, over all Europe, to lessen confidence in his management of one of the most important interests in this country, and to damage the company. That it is possible to do this is a shame and a disgrace to the nation. If such an occurrence had been before an English court of justice, each one of the men guilty of this conspiracy would have been placed under arrest by the judge and consiened to a penal colony for the balance of his life.

The stock of the Metropolitan Street Railway and that of the Metropolitan Securities Company recovered somewhat yesterday from Friday's raid. The former gained 21/2 points on the day's trading, and Metropolian Securities one point.

A FEAST FOR LITTLE GIRLS.

Potted Plants to Carry Away. About 700 little girls from the poores districts in the city were feasted and entertained yesterday afternoon at Webster Hall in East Eleventh street, by the Little Mothers' Aid Association. There was one crowd from Cherry Hill, one from Hell's Kitchen and others from the lower West Side. Stereopticon views of animals were shown and the girls fairly yelled with de-light every time a picture was thrown on

"Oh, look at de big cow," one cried when a picture of an elephant was shown, and several who were sitting near the front were so frightened that they ran down were so frightened that they ran down the aisle.

"What animal is this?" asked the director, pointing to a deer. "Dat's a billy goat," sang out one little girl, "cause Jerry Fadden's father has one."

At the conclusion of the entertainment H. A. Groesbeck, treasurer of the association, announced that there would be ice cream and cake for all. The notice was of such general interest that for a few minutes Mr. Groesbeck, who is called "Uncle Jimmy" by the girls, was almost smothered with the delighted crowd that surged around him, pulling his hair and mustache, jerking his coat tails and fighting to shake hands with him.

There was a big mix-up when the refreshments were being passed around, but everybody got some and a few a little more.

but everybody got some and a few a little more.

Then each of the 700 girls received a potted geranium in full bloom, and all were told if they would bring the plants back alive a year from now they would get a book on natural history.

As the chattering crowd passed out into the street it looked more like a moving flower garden than anything else. Policeman Kelly of the Church street station, who had charge of 300 girls from the lower West Side, didn't appear to enjoy his job. Naturally he has a solemn, dignified appearance, but as he stalked along surrounded by the huge patch of waving geraniums he actually looked grouty.

And he didn't cheer up much when some boys began to yell, "Git on to de weed in de garden," nor when the little girls began to sing "Ring around a rosy, a copper wid de posies."

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S TRIP.

Dr. Biggar, the Physician Who Went With Him, Tells of the Fun They Had. CLEVELAND, April 18 .- John D. Rockefeller will probably leave for New York the first of next week. He has just com-and West. He is here with his physician, Dr. H. F. Biggar, who says that Mr. Rockefeller is in excellent health. "Mr. Rockefeller is not a victim of dyspepsia," said Dr. Biggar. "On our trip he was able to eat anything that I did, and I believe that I ate most everything that was offered to us. Mr. Rockefeller never was offered to us. Mr. Rockefeller never offered a million to any one that could cure him of stomach trouble. He has no stomach trouble. But I think that about fifty letters reached him every day of our trip from people who said they had a sure cure. They all went to the waste basket after a valet had looked them over."

The party left New York on Feb. 16. Dr. Biggar was lavish in his praise of Mr. Rockefeller as a travelling companion. They spent most of their time together. At Pasadena, Cal., they played golf, and Dr. Biggar tells about his introduction to the game:

"I never played golf back here in Ohio. I knew that Mr. Rockefeller was a skilful player and I was afraid that I would be an uninteresting rival. But Mr. Rockefeller took a great interest in teaching me the game, and I think that he enjoyed my efforts at teeing off, putting and getting out of bunkers. My teacher was patient, and in a little while I was able to go it alone. Then it was great sport. Every afternoon we just lived on the links. I was never able to win from Mr. Rockefeller, but I do think that I came very close to it."

During the journey twenty-six States were visited.

The fences have gone twice in as many days. They rose again to-day, but they were again the victim of an Oppenheim axe. Lawyer Oppenheim claims the right to a free and uninterrupted use of several of the avenues which were opened last year by the Hollywood Hotel and Cottage Company. These avenues, known as Hoey, Hollywood, Van Cort and Hillside, were traversed but little and they were fenced off again by the company.

SUMMER CAMP FOR BOYS.

Gift of $3,000 for the Purpose by Isaac Guggenheim and Isidor Straus.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Educational Alliance held yesterday a gift of $2,500 was announced from Isaac Guggenheim for the purpose of purchasing a site for a summer camp for East Side boys. Isidor Straus, president of the institution, contributed $500 for the equipment and improvement of the site when selected. The need for a permanent camp site was outlined at the meeting by Ferdinand Kuhn, chairman of the club committee of the Educational Alliance. For the past five years the institution has annually taken 500 boys from the congested districts of the East Side and sent them out of town for vacations varying from one to seven weeks.

The campo have been at Pelham Bay, Huntington, L. I., Plum Island, and Crystal Lake, N. Y. The new site has not yet been selected. It will be within seventy miles of the city. Accommodations will be made for thirty boys a week. day a gift of $2,500 was announced from

Then her hand and arm began to swell and blacken and the patient grew weaker and weaker until she died.

TRUTH ABOUT BOY AND BABY.

HADN'T CARRIED IT AROUND THE STREETS FOUR DAYS.

Belonged to His Sister and Her Husband, Who Had Left It With Her Father to Care For Temporarily-Boy Insists That He Is No Plugged Dime, at That.

"But I ain't no plugged dime at that, Sarge, am I?" said fifteen-year-old Henry Krista yesterday at the Vernon avenue police station in Williamburg, when he finished a confession that ended all conjecture about what the police at first thought was a remarkable abandonment case.

Krista had walked into the police station on Friday night. He had a four-month old baby with him and he told Sergt. Moynihan that the police could care for the infant better than he could. Sergt. Moynihan wanted to know all about it.

"Well, me name is Hen Krista," said the boy. "I sell papers down at de Atlantic ferry. On Monday night a swell loidy and a gent as looks like her husband came along. De loidy she gives me de wink an me do I want to earn a quarter. I says I did an' she says to bring along a bundle what she had.

"Den we went to de Gran' Central station an' after dey had bought some tickets she hands me de kid an' says for me to hold it while she an' de gent went to de train a moment.

"By an' by I begins to wonder when she was comin' back, an' about dat time a cop comes in an' I sees dey was gettin' ready to shut up shop, so I pulls out with de kid, not knowin' what else.

"Now, I can't take care of no kid. Besides, de kid's got somet'ing de matter with its stummick, I guess, like babies do."

Henry also said his father, Henry Krista, Sr., lived at 213 Atlantic avenue. Detective Babbington went there, and the elder Krista told the story of the baby. The boy also told it later, when asked to confess the "Well," said he, "I was stringin' youse a little. Cuttin' out all pipes, de kid belongs to me sister Mary, an' Mary's all right. Cling to dat, now. Some time ago she was out walkin' an' one of dem big long-shores what had his pots on come out of a gin mill and gives her de eye. Den he tried to take her by de arm. Nothin' doin' there, but he was tryin' to give her a kiss when Patsy Colligan come along. Ever hear of Patsy? No? On de level?

"Well, Patsy is a young guy what ain't got his real growt' yet, but he's a real prizefighter, all right. He comes from de same street where Terry McGovern used to live an' he looks somet'ing like Terry, at dat.

"Patsy, he gives de longshore a punch dat sent him asleep, an' den he walks home wid me sister. Nothin' was doin' then but they had to get married. Dat was a skinch. De old man, he was ag'inst it, but you know that doesn't mean nothin'. De first pill out of de box dey has de kid. I took a shine to de kid, an de kid t'inks I am a winner an' we's pals—dat's all dere was to it.

He didn't want de k d along until dey got settled, an' he leaves it for de old man to take care of. De old man gets up on his ear at dat, an' I dunno as I t'ink he's away off at dat, but I seen de kid was goin' to be up aginst it an' I wanted to put her in one of dem homes where kids have good times.

"Den I shoves a queer nickel over to de old loidy dat sells candy down next to de ferry an' I gets ne me de sticks to keep de kid from worryin' an' I starts out wid her. Say, she acted like a little queen for fair an' I never had no trouble gettin' here, only folks was pip'n' me off all de time in de cars. Are youse goin' to jug me for dis?"

Capt. Velsor said Magistrate O'Reilly would have to decide that question at the Lee Avenue police court. But when they got there Mrs. Krista, who became Henry's stepmother two weeks ago, said she'd care for the child. The Magistrate had the baby turned over to her, and Henry was released in time to do business with the second editions of the evening papers.

ENGAGED MEN'S CLUB.

May Be a Rival to Anti-Race Suiciders

Columbia's Anti-Race Suicide Club gained much prominence at the university last week owing to a dissersion in its ranks and its acquisition of a faculty member. The dissersion arose through the surreptitious initiation of a prominent football player who was thought to be married at the time of his election to the club, but was afterward discovered to be only engaged. He has proposed three other engaged men, but the married men have done a little investigation on their own account and have rejected all of the pro-

In addition, an amendment to the constitution has been proposed to safeguard the club's membership, whereby only those students who have become fathers will in the future be eligible for membership. There seems to be no doubt that the amendment will be adopted at the next meeting of the club. The football player has declared his intention of resigning from the club if the amendment is adopted and threatens to organize a rival organization of men who are engaged to be married.

The club played a great card on Friday by formally enrolling as a member Prof. Harlan F. Stone of the school of law. Prof. Stone became a father a few days ago, and as he entered his class room on Friday to lecture on "Carriers" he found the following card on his desk:

We have learned that the cause of earth population is being fostered by you in the light of the birth of your first child. The Anti-Race Suicide Club of Columbia University believes it to be peculiarly fitting that you should become a regular member of the organization with all the rights, privileges and immunities thereunto appertaining. In consideration of these facts you are hereby apprised of your unanimous election these of the club. In addition, an amendment to the con-

POLICY KING ADAMS TO FIGHT.

MISSING WITNESS NOLAN WILL BE HUNTED UP.

Prosecutor Wants to Get at His Reas for Keeping Away From the Trial
-Adams at a Hotel in Custody-Long Immunity Has Made Him Very Rich.

Now that Al Adams, the policy king, has been convicted without the evidence of William E. Nolan, the ex-employee of policy headquarters at 366 West Thirtyfirst street, who gave evidence on the first trial, the county detectives propose to round up Nolan, and he will get into trouble unless he can make a satisfactory explanation as to why he committed contempt of court by disobeying the subpæna served on him on Monday.

The significance of his disappearance was not fully apparent until Justice Scott charged the jury. Prosecutor Schurman had said all along that Nolan's testimony was good only as showing how the game was worked and that County Detectives Hammond and Reardon were themselves experts and as able to make the process clear as any one could be. The trouble with them, however, was that they could not swear that Adams was connected with the policy business prior to the time of his arrest and the seizure of his trunks containing the manifolds of the November business. The value of Nolan's testimony to that effect was apparent when Justice to that effect was apparent when Justice Scott, in charging, said that the jurors must be convinced that the manifolds in Adams's trunk were policy manifolds. It was not sufficient that they should be like policy manifolds. If the jurors knew that Adams had been connected with the policy game prior to his arrest. Justice Scott said, it would be reasonable for them to conclude that the manifolds were policy manifolds.

The only testimony to the effect that Adams had long been a broker of the grme was that given on the first trial by Nolrn. The Adams contingent were elated with the charge, which they said was in Adems's favor. Hence it was that Adems had res's had sern, has son, A. J. Adams, Jr., who was one of his lawyers, and the policy crowd were unable to understand how the jury came to convict. *Pradise Jimmy" Oliver, the white-haired Gern of the policy lawyers was surprised, too, although he has seen many of his clients convicted and sent to prisen.

Adams's lawyers are confident that he will never go to prisen. They expect that a new trial will be ordered. The Adams case is peculiar, however, in that the exception of Nolan, there will be no difficulty in making as strong a case in the future, unless there is a wholesale disepperance of county detectives, Ass sent District Atterneys and agents of the Perkhurst and Goddard societics. Meanwhile Adams is not locked up.

Deputy Chief Reardon of the county detectives reported at the District Attorney's office yesterday afternoon that Adams was living at the Hotel Netherland in the custody of Deputy Sheriffs Bell and Kelly. Some time before Reardon made his report, a reporter asked at the Netherland if Adam was there and was informed that he was not. Sentence is set down for Tuesday in the Criminal branch of the Supreme Court. Adams's lawyers do not expect that he will be sentered then and do expect that Justice Scott will issue a certificate of reasonable doubt, upon which the case may be carried to the higher courts Pending the ultimate decision Adams, would be admitted to bail.

Suit. McClintock of the Parkhurst society, County Detectives Hammond and Reardon and other men who have waged war upon policy shops declared yesterday that the conviction of Adams was a stunning blow to the spread of the game. There has not been so much raiding of policy shops recently as there used to be when Reardon was superintendent of the Goddard society, and it is said that the game is by no mears wiped cut.

The law under which Aluns was convicted is known as the Goddard Anti-Policy law. It was passed by the Legislature in 1901 after a State Constitutional convention had demanded that stringent measures be taken by the Legislature to extirpate policy, which takes the pennies of the general Sessions who have heard the trial of nearly all the cases tried under the Goddard law and who, as a rule, send convicts to prison, express particular aversion to policy and its promoters.

dard law and who, as a rule, send convicts to prison, express particular aversion to policy and its promoters.

Adams is a very wealthy man, whose income is variously estimated. The smallest figure named yesterday was $300,000 a year. He owns a great deal of real estate and will not be hampered by lack of money in fighting his conviction.
